

```

'''
    This class checks
    -if the inputted file name is a text file or word file
    -if the text files contains strings between the float values
    -if the
'''

import os.path
array = []
tempArray = []

def getArray(fileName):
    '''
        This function removes the '\n' and '\t' and check if the text file exists in the directory.

        This function also detects the strings and show message
    '''
    fileError = False
    fileNameforInput = "Textfiles**" + fileName + '.txt'
    print("\nEnter"+fileNameforInput)
    if os.path.exists(fileNameforInput):
        fileReader = open(fileNameforInput, "r")
        for lines in fileReader:
            while '\n' in lines:
                lines = lines.replace('\n', '')
            while '\t' in lines:
                lines = lines.replace('\t', '')
            while ' ' in lines:
                lines = lines.replace(' ', '') tempArray.append(lines)
        print(tempArray)
        while "" in tempArray:
            tempArray.remove("")
        print(tempArray)
        for valuesInArr in tempArray:

```

```
    try:
        okLines = float(valuesInArr)
        array.append(okLines)
    except ValueError:
        fileError = True
        print("¥n The Lines contain Strings ¥n")
        return fileError
        fileReader.close()

    return array fileReader.close()

else:
    print("¥n The File Name does not exist ¥n")
    fileError = True
    return fileError
    fileReader.close()
```